Worker repairs cracks in one-year-old Henderson Center floor.

New gym floor in Henderson cracks twice

By Kevin Gergely
Photo Editor

The arena floor in the Henderson Center is cracking up, but Gene Kuhn, special project coordinator, is not laughing.

Kuhn is supervising efforts in trying to find out what is causing the cracks that stretch the length of the polyurethane surface. It is the second time in as many years that cracks have appeared.

B.H. Mott and Sons Drilling, Inc. has been hired to obtain samples from beneath the arena by drilling through the floor in several places.

Kuhn said floor cracks first appeared during construction of the center in 1981. They were repaired by Mellon Stuart Co., the original floor contractor, by cutting a seam along the fault, repairing the concrete underneath and refilling the seam. But within two months, the cracks reappeared.

Kuhn declined to speculate on the cause of the cracks.

"We don't know if it's the concrete, the ground underneath or what," he said. "That's why we're doing the tests."

No estimates are yet available on the damage. Kuhn said he did not know if the cracks could be blamed on Mellon Stuart.

Kuhn said no cracks have reached the basketball playing surface, but some indentations within the area and crack leading toward it are visible.

The beginning of basketball season in late November should not be affected by the repairs, Kuhn said, "unless something big happens, and we don't expect that."

McGraw opens area campaign

Education needs money

By Rose Hutchinson
Staff Writer

Higher education deserves priority but there's no guarantee that it won't be hit with additional freezes, according to West Virginia gubernatorial candidate Warren R. McGraw.

"Education is the answer to West Virginia's problem," McGraw said.

McGraw, D-Wyoming, opened his Cabell-county campaigning Saturday at the Memorial Student Center speaking to a group of about 45 residents and students. The West Virginia Senate President said higher salaries for educators should be a high priority for his administration if he were to be elected governor.

"To keep good faculty, you have to pay them," McGraw said. "Education needs to be as immune... as it can be to being short-changed."

However, McGraw said he was reluctant to make any promises about budget cuts affecting higher education because circumstances would make a difference to his decision.

"You don't know what form the emergency would take," McGraw said, "But I'm not inclined that way." (toward not making cuts)

In response to questions concerning the present administration's treatment of higher education he answered, "I'm not governor. I'm not Rockefeller."

In higher education decision making McGraw said he would depend on advice of others.

"I'm not an educator," he said, "I will depend on advice from people who are experts in the field."

McGraw said he would get the money needed for education somewhere. "Education includes K through a Phd."

"Where there's a will, there's a way," he said. "It must be done. The problems here (at Marshall) are no bigger than anywhere else in the state."

McGraw said he was not happy about the tuition increase for in-state students, but supported an increase for out-of-state students.

"In 16 years, I have not supported tuition increases," he said. "But there comes a point when faculty would leave." This past year McGraw voted in favor of the increase.

He said he was also in favor of keeping the Board of Regents as is. Senator Robert R. Nelson, D-Cabell, made statements last week saying that the BOR should be restructured.

Warren R. McGraw

McGraw disagreed saying that he expected the present appointees to do more for higher education than previous board members.

"They have a greater understanding of the needs of higher education," he said, "So there's no need to get rid of them."

"I helped create the BOR," McGraw said, "and I think they are beginning to show a greater degree of concern for higher education."

He said he didn't have anyone in mind to replace BOR Chancellor Robert Ramsey who resigned last week.

"I wouldn't be involved in that decision," he said.

Other issues that McGraw discussed in reference to higher education included the state medical schools and starting a state law school.

According to McGraw there isn't any particular problem in supporting all the med schools and he said he would like to see them all continue to operate.

McGraw also brought up the idea of introducing a law school located in Charleston for easy access to the law library at the Capitol.

Other expansions, he said, would have to come from the institutions themselves. The law school would be an umbrella operation headed at Marshall. First year classes could be taken at M.U., but he said there didn't appear to be that much interest at Marshall. "But, then I'm a lawyer."

Nelson supports McGraw despite differences

By Rose Hutchinson
Staff Writer

Senator Robert R. Nelson, D-Cabell, spoke out Saturday in support of Warren R. McGraw, D-Wyoming, as the Democratic candidate for governor of West Virginia despite differences of opinion about the West Virginia Board of Regents.

Nelson, who was attending a campaign dinner for McGraw, said he strongly supported McGraw.

"When I was chairman of the education committee, I could always count on his support," he said.

However, McGraw disagreed with Nelson concerning the West Virginia Board of Regents. Nelson made statements last week saying that the BOR should be restructured. He said the BOR should operate in an advisory capacity with less power and not as a decision making body.

"It's the strongest board in the country," Nelson said. McGraw, on the other hand, said he would like to see it remain the way it is because he said he thought the new appointees would do more for education than previous members.

"He (McGraw) does have an open mind," Nelson said. "He's been critical before. I'll just have to get him when he's critical again and get rid of the board."

"I think he's just being diplomatic now," Nelson said. "He would not be the last bullwhip. It's not the time to stir up such an issue."

Filing date set

The dates to file to run for Student Senate will be Wednesday from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and Thursday from noon till 4:40 p.m. in 2W29 Memorial Student Center.

The vacant seats include two residence hall, three commuter and three off-campus positions.

The Senate elections will be Oct. 6.

Poll shows Moore leading candidate

CHARLESTON - Secretary of State A. James Manchin and U.S. Rep. Nick Rahall have the most support for governor among West Virginia Democrats, but Republican Arch Moore would defeat any Democratic contender if a vote were taken today, according to the West Virginia Poll.

Today's installment of the poll, a scientific survey of statewide public opinion shows Rahall the preferred candidate among 31.2 percent of state Democrats, with Manchin the choice of 30.9 percent. But it also shows Moore, the former two-term governor, could defeat any of the Democrats seeking or considering a bid for their party's 1984 gubernatorial nomination.

2 charged with murder

MORGANTOWN - Two Florida men were charged Monday with murdering a West Virginia University student who was shot in the head at Coopers Rock State Forest 20 miles east of Morgantown, police said.

The men were hitchhiking on Kentucky Route 207 in Flatwoods, Ky., when they were arrested, said Capt. L.J. Trupo of the state police detachment in Shinnston. Morgantown state police were sent to Flatwoods to pick up the pair, said Trupo, who added that he did not know whether they would waive extradition.

Murder warrants issued Monday named Allen James Schmidt, 26, and Edward E. Watkins, 20, said Trooper A.H. Wade of the state police detachment in Morgantown. Wade said he did not know the men's hometowns.

Trupo said "a third party is involved," but that he could not release any information on another possible arrest.

Trupo said Schmidt and Watkins were accused of murdering Wayne Erdman, 22, a WVU forestry student whose body was found Saturday inside a van parked at the state forest. He had been shot twice above the left ear.

Russian challenges U.S. hosting of U.N.

UNITED NATIONS - THE U.S. deputy chief delegate to the United Nations told other U.N. members Monday that if they wanted to move U.N. headquarters out of the country the United States would do nothing to stop them.

He made the remark in the U.N. Host Country Relations Committee after Soviet delegate Igor Yakovlev complained of conditions put on Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko's travel to New York that prompted the Soviet government to cancel Gromyko's annual trip to the U.N. General Assembly.

The assembly's three-month 38th annual session starts Tuesday and normally Gromyko would be arriving Sunday and would speak the following day.

The Soviet government announced Gromyko will not attend because New Jersey and New York have ruled a Soviet plane bringing him here would be barred from landing at Kennedy of Newark international airports.

Nuclear mishaps on rise

WASHINGTON - Reactors in North Carolina, Arkansas and Alabama top a list of the worst managed operating atomic power plants in the country in 1982, according to government documents obtained by a Ralph Nader anti-nuclear organization.

In a report Tuesday, the Critical Mass Energy Project said the 4,500 mishaps or "events" reported at U.S. nuclear plants last year - including 253 that had a "particularly safety significance" - were 10 percent above the number of mishaps reported to the Nuclear Regulatory commission in 1981.

Using mostly NRC data, the 34-page Critical Mass report assessed the relative performance of the nation's 56 atomic power plants on their management, the number and severity of the mishaps they experienced, security threats, exposure of workers to radiation and their production of electricity.

U.S. warships shell Druse artillery

BEIRUT, Lebanon - U.S. naval guns hammered away at Druse artillery positions in Lebanon's central mountains Monday, and for the first time a U.S. spokesperson said the firing was in support of the Lebanese army's defense of Souk el-Charb.

The government's Radio Beirut reported that fighting raged into the night in the mountain town overlooking the Lebanese capital. An army communique said a Lebanese Bulldog reconnaissance plane crashed near the Druse mountain town of Alek "and the fate of the two pilots is still unknown."

It was the third time in the 16 days of renewed civil war that U.S. ships have opened fire and the first time since Syria warned Sunday that its troops in Lebanon would fire back if attacked by American ground, air or sea forces.

Shamir may follow Begin

JERUSALEM - Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir appeared almost certain to succeed Menachem Begin as Israel's next prime minister after two key coalition factions announced Monday that they unanimously supported Shamir.

The action by the national Religious Party and TAMI, an ethnic faction representing Jewish immigrants from North Africa, appeared to quash speculation that some of their members might defect from Shamir's camp and join the Labor Party in forming the next government.

They were two of four parties that sent delegations to President Chaim Herzog on Monday to state their choice for the premiership. NRP leader Yosef Burg, the Interior Minister, told reporters his party "attaches the utmost importance to the speed with which a new government is to be formed."

Opinion

I'm afraid it's true

It never fails. Whenever I travel to some other state, someone inevitably will ask, "Where are you from?" "West Virginia," I respond with Pride (with a capital P, of course.)

"Oh, you're from western Virginia," one will say. "I understand people there go barefooted and live in dirt shacks and drink moonshine," another will say.

Of course I straighten out the misconceptions. But, every so often, someone will ask me a question to which I can only hold my head in shame and say, "Yes, unfortunately, that's true."

Some of these questions have (or could have) included the following:

- "Isn't that the state with 17.4 percent unemployment - the highest unemployment rate in the nation?"

- "Isn't that the state that has a turnpike that is called one of the most dangerous roads in the country? A turnpike that in many places is only two lanes?"

- "Isn't that the state with the secretary of state who wears funny hats, appeared on Real People and hopes to run for governor in 1984?"

- "Isn't that the state with Gov. Jay Rockefeller, the man who spent about $12 million to get re-elected to an office that only pays $55,000 a year? With West Virginia's population, that comes out to about $6 per person, doesn't it? And isn't he interested in running for the U.S. Senate next year?"

- "Isn't that the state that has a confusing law that says if you're 19 years old, you can drink, but after the first of October, if you're visited by a friend from another state who is 20, he can't drink - unless your friend goes to college in West Virginia?"

Vaughn

- "Isn't that the state that is at the bottom of the scale in terms of pay for public school teachers and higher education employees?"

- "Isn't that the state that year after year, the governor imposes spending freezes on state agencies to make up for revenue shortfalls?"

- "Isn't that the state where higher education is treated so poorly that many quality faculty and staff members at higher education institutions are leaving to go to other jobs and other states?"

- "Isn't that the state that spends so little on higher education that there is a shortage of the equipment at most, if not all, state colleges and universities?"

Many other questions have been (or could have been) asked, but aren't these enough? It is fine to be proud of the good things our state has to offer, but it's time West Virginians realize there are some things that have to be changed so that all of us can show what Mountain Pride is all about.

MU faculty needs union

The American Federation of Teachers is dead on Marshall's campus.

Dr. William H. Paynter, former president of the MU chapter of the AFT, blamed the demise, in part, on faculty apathy.

It seems shocking that Marshall faculty members could allow their chance for union representation to wither, especially when one considers the sorry shape of higher education in this state.

See story, Page 7

How can faculty members be apathetic when they are denied significant pay increases year after year?

How can faculty members be apathetic when their salaries rank near the bottom of the scale in every category when compared to other states in the southern region?

How can faculty members be apathetic when they are asked to teach, but are not given adequate equipment to do so?

This is no time for apathy. Marshall faculty members need a union.

A union can provide the clout and organization needed to properly press the state Legislature and the Board of Regents for better salaries and working conditions. Without one, it seems unlikely that significant improvements will occur.

It's time to reactivate the MU chapter of the AFT or seek union representation elsewhere, perhaps in the West Virginia Education Association and its parent group, the National Education Association.

Organize before it's too late.

Congratulations to Randle, Herd

We'd like to congratulate the Marshall football team and head Coach Sonny Randle for the 35-0 win Saturday over Morehead State.

The lopsided victory came as a pleasant surprise after the Herd's lackluster performance in its first two games.

Indeed, maybe those early losses to Eastern Michigan and Illinois State were not a true indication of the quality of the team and its coaches. We certainly hope not.

We noted with interest some of the biting post-game comments Randle made Saturday.

"The vultures had better not land too soon," Randle said in reference to his critics. And in a parting comment at the press conference, he said, "They can put the rope away for another week."

We hope Randle does not consider The Parthenon as a ravenous creature circling in wait for his demise or as a cold-hearted hangman ready to bring an untimely end to his coaching career.

It is neither.

Despite our reminder last week of his promise to resign if he does not produce a winner at Marshall, we sincerely wish him and his players the best of luck with the rest of the season.

We hope the Herd continues to perform well next week when it meets Southern Conference foe Furman.

Again, congratulations to Randle and the Herd.

He made life better

Marshall is a better place because of Curtis Baxter.

Baxter, professor emeritus of English and founder of the Marshall Artists Series, died Thursday.

He launched a performing arts program in 1936 to commemorate Marshall's centennial. As manager of the series until 1972, Baxter presented such well-known figures as Eleanor Roosevelt, Helen Hayes, Edna St. Vincent Millay and Carl Sandburg to Marshall and the Huntington community.

Perhaps the greatest tribute to this man is that his creation is still going strong after 47 years, enriching the lives of those in the area.

He improved the quality of life here. The Marshall community is lucky to have known such a person.

Why not make everyone write?

The standards are improving.

Beginning next fall, students entering the College of Liberal Arts will have to complete a writing requirement before they are eligible for graduation.

It's a step toward academic excellence which all who are dedicated to quality education should welcome.

To satisfy the requirement, students will have to write an essay of at least 2,000 words in their major field of study. The assignments will have to be written in the English language.

If properly enforced and administered, this requirement will ensure that liberal arts graduates can communicate effectively in writing.

We commend the committees on campus responsible for the institution of this proposal, as well as the Board of Regents, which gave final approval.

We urge Marshall's Academic Standards and Planning Committee to adopt a similar university-wide requirement for every student in every college.

After all, effective communication is vital to a successful career - whatever one's field of study.

Correction

A Page 1 article in Friday's issue of The Parthenon reported that 18 states are members of the Southern Regional Education Board.

Correction: Only 14 states are members.

Eight candidates vie for Homecoming crown

By Vicki Smith
Staff Writer

In the next two weeks Marshall University women will undergo interviews and a student body vote in hopes of becoming one of the six women to serve on the 1983 Homecoming Court.

Eight students eligible for Homecoming Queen include: Sara Crickenberger, Mia Moran, Jane Daugherty, Jacqueline Helm, Karen Kapp, Jeanay Perry, Michele Hale and Joyce Hamrick.

Those eligible for junior attendant include: Nancy Gard, Diana Britton, Sandra Darlington, Lisha Longwell, Diana Tabit and Diana Romanosky.

Sophomores eligible for attendant include: Lorie Wyant, Anna Villareal, Nancy Stewart, Heather Fredeking, Julie Phillips, and Cynthia Carr.

Students eligible for freshman attendant include: Dawn White, Kelly Lucas, Rebecca Woods, Rhonda Benefee, Lisa Joseph, and Sherri Dunn.

Screening of 250 applications, submitted by nominees, decided which 26 women would continue in the Homecoming Court selection process.

The screening process is a system of points awarded for scholarship, university leadership, community service and campus participation. The 26 women continue a schedule this week of luncheons and interviews with judges, said Janis Winkfield, Homecoming Court Selection committee chairman. Alumni representatives, serving as judges, will select 13 women for the student body to vote into different positions on the Homecoming Court. The 13 women will consist of four seniors competing for Homecoming Queen, and three women from each freshman, sophomore and junior classes competing as her attendants. Following the student body's vote, five women will serve on the 1983 Homecoming Court. The court will consist of a freshman attendant, a sophomore attendant, a junior attendant, a senior attendant and the 1983 Homecoming Queen, Winkfield said.

After announcing the 13 finalists, students with a validated Marshall ID and activity card select the Homecoming Court by voting Sept. 28, between 8 a.m. and 6:45 p.m. Voting stations will be located in the Alumni Lounge of the Memorial Student Center and in the lobby of Twin Towers West. Students may vote at either station without regard to a student's residency. Students will be aided in voting by pictures of the 13 candidates posted at both stations.

When voting, students' names will be marked off a master list preventing anyone from voting twice, Phil L. Silberstein, coordinator of student activities, said. Students vote for one person for each of the five positions on the court. Students will vote for one woman in each class. The senior with the most votes will reign as queen and the senior with the second most votes will be senior attendant. The identity of the queen will be announced Sept. 30, on the Memorial Student Center Plaza.

'Confident Herd' readies for 'hornets' nest

By Tom Alulise
Sports Editor

The party is over for Marshall's football team.

After an impressive 35-0 romping of outmanned Morehead State, the Herd must now prepare for Saturday's trip to Greenville, S.C., where it will face the "very manned" Furman Paladins.

Furman, 2-1 and the three-time defending Southern Conference champion, upset Georgia Tech 17-14 Saturday in Atlanta. The Yellow Jackets were regarded by a number of pre-season publications as one of the top teams in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

"We'll be heading into a hornets' nest Saturday," Marshall's head coach Sonny Randle said. "We have our work cut out for us but we're not going to make that long trip for nothing. We'll go down there ready to play."

Herd receiver Brian Swisher, who Saturday caught Marshall's first touchdown pass in 14 games, said he believes MU can compete with the Paladins if the offense and defense perform to their optimum levels.

"We need to have the least amount of mistakes possible and have a great effort offensively and defensively," Swisher said. "The Morehead game did a lot to boost our confidence and if we continue to play well and eliminate the mistakes the sky's the limit."

Marshall committed only one turnover in Saturday's victory, quite a contrast from the Herd's 10 turnovers in its two previous games.

"I've said if we could just eliminate the mistakes we would have a good ball club," Randle said.

MU's offense piled up 424 net yards against Morehead, while its defense limited the Eagles to only 118. Marshall also had 19 first downs to Morehead's five.

Senior Dan Patterson, starting his first game for MU at quarterback, led the Herd to four of its five touchdowns before giving way to junior college transfer Tim Kendrick, who also directed a Marshall scoring drive.

Larry Fourquarean and Robert Suratt accounted for all but one of the Herd's scores, and combined for 259 yards on the ground. Fourquarean's touchdown in the first quarter, which spotted the Herd a quick 7-0 lead, was Marshall's first TD in 13 quarters.

Ironically, Fourquarean was responsible for the Herd's last touchdown; Nov. 13, 1982.

"I knew before the game Saturday we were ready to play," Randle said. "We were a keg of dynamite that blew at the right time."

Marshall's exploding offense broke two records in its thumping of Morehead. Its average of 6.05 yards per play bettered the 5.6 set against the same Eagles in 1977. The Herd's 5.7-yard average per rush topped the previous record, 4.9, also set against Morehead in 1977.

MU's 35 points was the most a Marshall team has amassed since a 35-8 victory over Morehead and the defense's shutout was the first since 1978.

Records set in third annual Pike Run

By Mark Ayersman
Staff Writer

Records were set in the male and female divisions of the 10K and 5K road races of the 1983 Pike Fest Run Saturday at Marshall University's Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity house, 1661 Fifth Ave.

David Duncan won the men's 10K run in a record time of 34 minutes, 34 seconds, and Pam Dockery's 43:02 set a record in the women's division.

Former Marshall track standout, Richard Watts, won the 5K run in 15:09, breaking the record he set of 15:18 in last year's race. Debbi Parsons also broke her own record in winning the women's division with a time of 19:36.

The two races had 365 finishers, including 212 runners who finished the 5K course.

"Yes, I consider the race a success, because we were up in the number of participants by about 160, and everyone seemed to enjoy it," Race Director Cleon Fowler said Saturday.

Runners came from as far away as Parkersburg and Williamson to be in the race, Fowler said.

Roger Boothe of Unita, W.Va. participated in the race in a wheelchair and finished seventh in the 5K run in 16:15.

Proceeds from the race go to Big Brothers of America. "We hope to have earned $1,300 to $1,400 for Big Brothers of America after we pay our race expenses," Fowler said. "This is an improvement of 110 percent over last year."

The race followed the same course as last year, beginning and ending at the Pike house.

The third annual race was sponsored by Atomic Distributing Co., Huntington Track Club, Brooks Shoe Co., WKEE-FM and the Pikes.

MU netters open season

The women's tennis team opened its season successfully Saturday with victories over West Virginia State and West Virginia Wesleyan.

In singles against W.Va. State, MU players posting wins were: No. 2 Shari Olsen, 6-0, 6-1; No. 3 Amy Wildermuth, 6-1, 6-0; No. 4 Lisa Marcum, 3-6, 6-1, 6-1, and No. 5 Nancy Bliss 6-3, 6-3.

Winning against Tech, were Olsen 6-0, 6-0; Wildermuth, 6-1, 6-0; Marcum 6-0, 6-0, and Bliss, 6-0, 6-1.

Soccer team 'looks best yet' in whipping UK

By J. Shep Brown
Staff Writer

Marshall's soccer team has seemed to "put things together," and play as a solid team, according to head coach Jack DeFazio.

DeFazio made his observation after the Herd defeated the University of Kentucky 5-0 Saturday at Fairfield Stadium for its second victory of the season against one loss.

"It was the best the team looked yet," DeFazio said. "We played a controlled game at our tempo - the defense shut them down, and the offensive pressure was strong."

"If (this game) is any indication of what's to come this season, it will be a good year," DeFazio said.

Junior Andy Zulauf and sophomore Greg Ogle scored in the first half on assists by junior Joe Biava.

"I'm finally back to playing to my capability after being away from the game for two years, Biava, who played at Campbell University in North Carolina, said. "I had something to prove to myself. I was really into the game."

Other scoring included sophomore Chris Peckich's unassisted goal, Zulauf's second goal on a penalty kick, and sophomore Brad Puryear's goal from sophomore Rick Hulcher.

After three games Zulauf is Marshall's scoring leader with four goals.

O'Donnell impressed by Mountaineers

WVU runs away from Herd

By Kennle Bass
Staff Writer

West Virginia University's cross country team may be good enough to qualify for the NCAA meet in November, Marshall's coach Rod O'Donnell said after the Mountaineers ran away from the Herd 17-45 in Saturday's dual meet.

"They have a tremendous team, much better than the one they had last year," O'Donnell said. "If they can keep their kids running like that, then I would say they have a good chance to qualify for the NCAA meet."

WVU defeated the Herd last season 16-49.

The top three finishers in Saturday's race on Marshall's home Glenbrier course, were all Mountaineers. Joseph Wangugi tied the five-mile course record, set last week, of 24 minutes, 28 seconds in winning the race. Steve Taylor, who dominated high school track last season as a senior at St. Marys High, was second with teammate Joseph Neal third.

"They (WVU) had a fantastic recruiting season," O'Donnell said. "They signed two of the top three high school cross country runners in the nation."

Mike Connelly, who finished fifth in the meet, was second in last year's national high school cross country meet, and Taylor finished third.

The top finisher for MU Saturday was senior Mike Dodge. Dodge's time, 24.37, was a personal best and enabled him to finish fourth.

The rest of the finishers for MU were: David Tabor eighth, at 25.06, breaking Todd Crosson's week-old freshman record; Brent Schwartz, 10th; Crosson, 11th; Roy Poloni, 14th; Richard Stewart, 15th; John Warnock, 16th; David Ball, 17th; Gary Cheslock, 19th; Bill Stehney, 21st; Mike Jenkins, 22nd and Brad Hanson, 23rd.

"West Virginia has a very good team, and so do we," O'Donnell said. "But right now, they're on a little different level than we are."

After all, effective communication is vital to a successful career -- whatever one's field of study.

Apathy closes teacher organizations

By Bryan Plye
Staff Writer

Apathy among teachers and professors is one reason two faculty organizations folded this year, according to two former organization presidents.

Dr. William H. Paynter, assistant professor of social studies and former president of the American Federation of Teachers, said his organization returned its charter because of insufficient interest among faculty members at Marshall.

Paynter said dues were another reason for closing the organization. "They were rather expensive, $85 a year, and a lot of us couldn't afford it".

The AFT is a teachers' union, and according to Paynter, faculty members thought; "To join a union, is somehow unprofessional".

However, Paynter said this is not true.

In its "heyday", Paynter said only about 100 MU faculty members joined the organization. This amounts to about 25 percent of the teaching population.

Paynter said in order for the AFT to survive, they needed at least 50 percent of the teaching staff.

The purpose of the AFT is to provide an organized group of teachers, with collective bargaining power, responsible for bettering the working conditions for teachers and establishing better wages, Paynter said.

However, Paynter said the organization rarely takes drastic measures.

"The AFT only uses a strike as a last possible resort," he said.

The other organization which has apparently become a part of MU history is the American Association of University Professors.

The AAUP is concerned with "a high form of academic citizenship," according to Dr. William P. Sullivan, chairman of the English department and former president of the MU chapter of the AAUP.

Sullivan said the only real reason for the folding of the AAUP on campus is because the most recent president of the chapter never called a meeting. Sullivan would not reveal the name.

Soap star rides in Community Day Parade

By E. Ann Dougherty
Staff writer

"Ryan's Hope" star Malcolm Groome, who plays Dr. Patrick Ryan in the daytime soap opera, said he would like soap operas to perform more of an "educational" function in the future.

Groome, 34, appeared in the Ninth Annual Community Day Parade Saturday in downtown Huntington.

A University of North Carolina graduate, he created the role of Patrick on "Ryan's Hope," then left after three years to explore the West Coast and recently returned to the same role.

He said "Ryan's Hope" emphasizes a family-oriented approach and that he realizes the impact soap operas have on the public.

"It would be nice to always put something good in front of them," he said. "Soap operas should lift and inspire people."

'Soap operas are less of a woman's domain today.'

Groome admitted that soap operas have "gone a little to the extreme with bedroom scenes." He said he would like to see soap operas present more morality and stress values.

He attributes the popularity of soap operas on campuses to the broad appeal of the various story lines. "Soap operas are less of a woman's domain today."

Concerning "Ryan's Hope," Groome said that his character will continue to be romantically involved with Dr. Faith Coleridge and that Joe Novak will return from his mysterious seclusion. Groome said that he would like to see the "darker side" of Pat Ryan's nature explored but that he receives his scripts a day to a week in advance and has little input into story lines.

During his free time at home in Manhattan, Groome is involved in meditation and the martial art, tai chi. His wife of three years, Rebekah, teaches actualism in Manhattan, which he explained was a form of meditation done to transform negative energy within the body into positive energy.

60 candidates listed in search for president

By Sandra Joy Adkins
Special Correspondent

At least 60 persons are being considered as candidates for the presidency of Marshall University, according to the Board of Regents official in charge of the search committee.

William J. Walsh, personnel director for the regents and executive secretary for the presidential search committee, said that as of Thursday, the panel had received 57 applications, including 20 who were nominated by others for consideration.

He said he received three more applications Friday morning. The 17-member committee will accept applications through Oct. 1.

Dr. Sam Clagg, who has been acting president since the resignation of Dr. Robert Hayes in May, said he hopes the resignation of Board of Regents Chancellor Robert Ramsey will not affect the search for the new Marshall president.

He said he is still in a "holding pattern" waiting to learn the name of the interim chancellor because that announcement will be the significant effect on MU. The BOR chancellor is the professional leader of all colleges and universities in the state; Marshall has to answer to the chancellor, Clagg said.

"If it has any effect on Marshall, it would slow down the presidential selection process," Clagg said. "I don't think it will occur, but it is a possibility that the Regents could say, 'the presidency of Marshall University is pretty important - let's hold that until we get a chancellor here to see that the president we're selecting is suitable to him or her.'"

According to Clagg, the Board of Regents will go through a search process to find the new chancellor similar to the Marshall presidential search that could take seven, eight or nine months.

Get down to business faster. With the BA-35.

If there's one thing business students have always needed, this is it: an affordable, business-oriented calculator.

The Texas Instruments BA-35, the Student Business Analyst.

Its built-in business formulas let you perform complicated finance, accounting and statistical functions — the ones that usually require a lot of time and a stack of reference books, like present and future value calculations, amortizations and balloon payments.

The BA-35 means you spend less time calculating, and more time learning. One keystroke takes the place of many.

The calculator is just part of the package. You also get a book that follows most business courses: the Business Analyst Guidebook. Business professors helped us write it, to help you get the most out of calculator and classroom.

A powerful combination.

Think business. With the BA-35 Student Business Analyst.
